The Tale of a Feather Duster.

By F. P. SUMMERWELL.

Copyrighted, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

His first election night in New York found him drifting and lonely, in the midst of the howling mob that surged around Herald square.

The horns, the tickling dusters, the showers of confetti, the merry intermingling of class and mass, were all too new to be quite pleasing experiences. He felt interested enough, however, to move with the throng and to take good naturedly the many familiarities of the people near him.

At Thirty-seventh street and Broadway he saw a slim young girl trying to escape the attentions of two overzealous duster holders. He pushed his way to her side and the boys fled, leaving him alone with the lady, no longer in distress.

She was young and of an alluring, limpid prettiness that made him feel big and awkward and anxious about the set of his coat. So absorbed was he in her general charm that her suddenly thrusting of a duster under his nose was a distinct shock. He had just sense enough to snatch it and ask, "Who are you?" when she ran away. Over her shoulder she called, "I'll tell you when you give me back my duster." Then she was gone.

He moved with the capering merrymakers up to Longacre square, where he learned of the defeat of his candidate for governor, then went home. The duster he carried with him and, handling it tenderly, hoped it might prove a means to dispel the crushing loneliness which he had felt ever since he had left his native town. He often wondered what the letters M. M. on the handle stood for.

His days went about as usual. He paid his lost election bet to the other young lawyer at the office. The winner's not treating seemed strange. At home they always did—but in New York everything was so different. He began to get on at the office, and once Judge Metcalf, his chief, mentioned taking him home to dine, but the matter never went any further.

The night of the presidential election found him once more mingling in the swarming pandemonium that raged around Herald square. He had the duster inside his coat and was no longer either lonely or listless, for he was hunting for M. M. to give her back the duster.

He wandered up and down, reading the conflicting bulletins, but always looking for a slender fairy of a girl who had sat like a queen in his heart for two years. The great searchlight at the Times building swung due north to indicate a Republican landslide, while the Journal's bulletin announced an overwhelming victory for the Democrats. Farther downtown the Herald proclaimed a small but safe majority for the Republicans, while according to a white sheet at Thirty-first street the same thing had befallen the other party.

He wrenched a yard long horn from an impertinent Italian boy, was tickled by a lady in an ermine coat and received a shower of confetti from a German housewife—all in the space of about ten minutes. He no longer looked askance at the mixed merrymakers. It was New York, and it all "went."

In front of the New Grand his attention was attracted by a gorgeous motor car. On the front seat sat his lady of the feather duster. There could be no doubt. It was she.

He felt cold and scared, but he pulled himself together and, stepping to her side, gave her the duster, handle first, and said, "Now, will you tell me who you are?"

She opened her eyes very wide, recognized him and the duster and started to speak when a smashing blow from the man beside her sent him spinning to fall with his head against an iron grating. His next sensation was of flying through space. Then a thousand bells rang, lights danced, voices buzzed, and he opened his eyes on a strange room. It was handsomer than his own, and beside him sat a nurse looking out of the window.

There was a calendar on the table, giving the date as Nov. 16. It must be a mistake, he thought—this was Nov. 7, election night, and yet there was the calendar. He put out his hand to draw it to him when the nurse turned, and he recognized the girl in the automobile. His head ached and his hands shook, but he was good grit, and when he met her bright gaze he said, "You never did tell me who you are." She laughed squarely at him, saying:

"My brother seemed to think his answer quite sufficient. He knocked you over before I had a chance to say anything. You ought to know who I am anyway. My picture has been on father's desk ever since the day after I met you in Thirty-seventh street, and the boys told me who you were. It occurred to me then that he ought to have one, but you never saw it. I am Marjory Metcalf, your chief's only daughter.

"Tom didn't know you when you brought me my duster, and before I could speak he knocked you down. We brought you home and have had a terrible time saving your life. The nurse is asleep, and I stole into her uniform. I guess I'll have to go now or she might not like it."

He caught her dimpled hand and persuaded her that the nurse really needed rest, which she must perforce take so long as she was without any uniform.

They had a lovely afternoon, giggling over the imprisoned nurse, eating bonbons, forgetting his medicine and being as happy as one can be in the springtime of life.

At 5 Mrs. Metcalf came in and told them that the nurse had departed in high dudgeon. They did not get any one in her place, Marjory and Tom and Mrs. Metcalf taking care of him themselves.

The night before he was to leave Marjory came up with the maid who brought his dinner. She was so perfectly lovely in a clinging white dress, open at the neck, that he had no eyes for anything except her dainty beauty. She finally decided that if he would not eat she would feed him, and they made a great frolic of the meal.

After she had made him take the last morsel, she decided to make him presentable. So she washed his face, then she combed his hair, and then he—but you would have done it yourself—she was so sweet. Of course she cried—they always do—and he had to kiss her again to comfort her. Then she grew a little saucy and tipped up her cleft chin and looked so irresistible he simply had to—just once more.

Mrs. Metcalf came in and found her daughter kneeling by Phil Pemberton's chair with her head on his shoulder. Her mother was so overcome that she forgot her grammar and exclaimed, "Why, Marjory, you've been being kissed."

"Mother," said Marjory, "how can you speak of such things before a strange man?"

"He is acting like a stranger, isn't he?" sniffed the lady of the house. "Are you engaged?"

"You'll have to ask him," said Marjory. "I don't really know."

"Why, yes, Mrs. Metcalf," answered Phil, "we are—I am sorry Marjory never told you."

"Why, Phil," exclaimed his sweetheart, "you know we have never mentioned it."

"Mother," she cried, "don't you think father must be lonely downstairs alone? I should think you'd hate to leave him."

Mrs. Metcalf went and told her husband, who said he was delighted—that he would rather have her marry a poor man who promised well than a rich one who did not. Phil stayed a week longer, then begged Marjory to marry and go with him. He was six feet three, but he persuaded this little maid that he could not live without her—that loneliness would be his undoing. So they were married, not downstairs, as they ought to have been, but up in the cozy room where he had first seen her in the nurse's clothes.

Mr. Metcalf gave her away and Tom was best man, while Mrs. Metcalf stood very near and smiled through misty eyes. The little bride wore the white dress with the open neck and looked like a morning glory. In her hair she wore no orange flowers, not even a "sunburst, the gift of the groom"—but she did wear a moth eaten, much used feather duster.

Persian Ideas.

An American traveler in Persia learned that the common soldiers of that country supposed that the English practice of firing a salute at the burial of a soldier had for its object the driving away of devils. Other mistaken impressions no less absurd he reports in his "Persian Life and Customs."

A village soldier asked me if I knew of dog worshipers. I told him I had heard of fire worshipers, cow worshipers and the like, but not of dog worshipers. He said he had seen some in Teheran. Some foreigners there had fed dogs at their tables, had washed and clothed them, fondled them in their laps and taken them riding in their carriages. Were they not dog worshipers?

An English sea captain, whose ship touched at Bushire, took a horseback ride through the streets of the city, but made so poor a display of horsemanship as to astonish and amuse the people. The next day a vender of fruits came on board the ship and said to the captain:

"I have made such an explanation as to free you from all reproach. There is no one who does not think that you are an expert rider, as becomes one of a nation of horsemen."

"And how did you do that?" asked the captain.

"I told them you were drunk."

Dr. Todd's Joke.

An amusing example of the Irishman's pronunciation occurs in a story told of the late Dr. Todd, the Irish archaeologist, who, although a great scholar, was not above perpetrating a practical joke. The London Spectator tells the story and says:

A very learned Englishman went to Dublin to examine some manuscripts in the library of Trinity college and was of course introduced to Dr. Todd, who one day in conversation told him that there was in Trinity college a curious instance of the survival of a habit dating from the time of the Danes; that at a certain hour of the afternoon—I think 6 o'clock—a porter went the round of the college ringing a bell and calling out in a loud voice, "The Dane's in the hall," when all the students rushed from their rooms to repel the invaders. So the learned but somewhat incredulous Englishman repaired to the college at 6 o'clock, and, sure enough, what Dr. Todd had told him came to pass, which he gravely related on his return to England. The summons of course referred to the dean.

The Three Fates.

The names of the three fates were Clotho, Lachesis and Atropos. To express the influence which they were believed to exercise on human life from birth to death they were represented as spinning a thread of gold, silver or wool, now tightening, now slackening and at last cutting it off. Clotho, the youngest, put the wool around the spindle, Lachesis spun it, and the aged Atropos cut it off when a man had to die.

A WATCH PROBLEM.

Telling the Time In the Dark With the Hands Removed.

Some time ago a poor old peasant who had invoked the king's wrath was seized by the king's soldiers and placed in a dungeon, says the Scientific American. His majesty was present and had the old man searched before being incarcerated. All his personal property consisted of a cheap watch, a small penknife, a shilling in cash and a lead pencil. The poor old man begged for mercy, but his pleadings availed him nothing, and he finally asked to be granted the privilege of knowing the length of his sentence. In reply the king took his knife and watch, which lay on the table, and, after taking the knife and prying the hands off the watch, returned to him his watch, saying, "When you have learned to tell the time correctly by this watch in your dungeon cell you will be liberated." The poor old man, knowing that the king meant a life sentence, staggered into his cell and wept bitterly. Nevertheless he was liberated in twenty-four hours, having accomplished the wonderful task of telling the correct time in the dark with a watch without hands. How did he do it?

A watch derives its power of motion from the recoil of the mainspring, and the recoil is governed by the balance and lever. For instance, if it takes twenty-four full turns of the stem to wind the watch and the watch runs twenty-four hours when fully wound, then for each turn of the stem it will run one hour.

A more simple method is to hold the stem firmly between the fingers and turn the watch around. In winding the watch to run for one hour the ratchet on the mainspring will click, say, thirty times, which proves that this watch runs two minutes for each click of the ratchet which is attached to the mainspring. We will suppose it was 12 o'clock noon when the watch was last wound up and you now wish to know the time. Beginning to wind it up, you count the clicks and find that before it is again wound up fully the ratchet clicks 130 times. By dividing this by thirty we get four and one-third, or four hours and twenty minutes, which added to 12 o'clock makes the hour 4:20 p. m.

While watches are not all exactly alike, the principle is the same, and it is simply a case of mental arithmetic in order to be able to tell the time. But you must always remember the time of the starting point or first winding and after that the time at the last winding.

The above was the method used by the poor old peasant, whose life mostly depended on his release and who was immediately rewarded by the king with his liberty and a life pension.

Death In a New Guise.

In a little village on the Hungarian frontier not far from Presburg a peasant woman recently received 400 kronen ($85) from her husband in America. She promptly deposited it in the local branch of the postoffice savings bank and then the next day went to withdraw the whole amount. The bank official was somewhat surprised and asked for an explanation, when she said that Death had appeared to her during the night and threatened to take her away with him unless she had the 400 kronen ready for him the next night. The gendarmerie were communicated with, and when Death made his promised appearance he was found to be very much alive in the person of the local judge. The woman's money, adds our Vienna correspondent who sends the story, is still in the bank, and the judge is in jail.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Denmark Original of Thule?

Was Denmark the original Thule, the world's end land of the ancients, beyond which lay only the Sluggish sea? Pytheas of Massilia, who was about contemporary with Alexander the Great, is believed by some to have referred to what we now know as Jutland by this name; but, as there is nothing to show that Pytheas had visited Thule himself, he was probably rather vague about it. Since he seems to have represented it as a land of the midnight sun, others have identified it as Iceland or even Greenland, and the Thule of the Irish monks of the ninth century A. D. was certainly Iceland. But the Thule of Tacitus, which lay near the Orkney islands, must have been part of the Shetlands.—London Chronicle.

Comparatively Lucky.

A young woman settlement worker who is well known in Boston's social circles observed that one of her proteges had a black eye, and, guessing its source, she wished to be sympathetic and said kindly, after speaking of the woman's eye: "Never mind, Mrs. Mc—, everything will be all right. Your troubles might be worse."

"Sure it might be worse," answered the woman philosophically, "I might be like yourself, Miss, with no husband at all."—Boston Record.

Foolish to Quit.

"Why don't you buy it?" asked her husband, who had consented to go shopping with her. "You say it is just what you want, and the price seems to be reasonable, so why waste time looking further?"

"Gracious, George, how foolish you talk! I'm not half tired out yet."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Couldn't.

"Tell me the old, old story," she said.

"I can't," he replied. "I have made a vow never to repeat a mother-in-law joke."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The benefactor engraves his name in the hand that receives the benefit.—French Proverb.

A MODEST REQUEST.

Colonel Bill Sterret and the Privilege He Craved.

When Colonel Bill Sterret first went to Washington to report the news of the capitol for his Texas papers, he had desk room in the office of General H. V Boynton, then the militant correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial.

General Boynton spoke out in meeting. He said things about statesmen that made the statesmen angry. He had many personal encounters with patriots whose feelings had been ruffled.

One night a man came into Boynton's office loudly proclaiming that he intended to shoot Boynton. The general grabbed a chair, beat the intruder over the head with it, knocked him down and threw him out. All this time Sterret sat at his desk, looking on in great amazement.

When the man landed in the gutter Sterret came timidly over to Boynton. "General," he said, "being a new hand here, I don't know the practices of this office nor the customs that pertain to Washington correspondents, and I didn't want to intrude. Now that I have seen what has happened, I trust you will allow me a question?"

"Go ahead," said Boynton.

"When the next man comes in, would it be too forward if I should crave the privilege of kicking him a few times in honor of the sainted Confederate dead?"—Saturday Evening Post.

REMOVED AT LAST.

The Figures Did Not Appear In the Final Set of Drawings.

A candidate for the royal engineers some years ago was told by his instructor to draw up the plans and specifications for a railway viaduct to connect two high hills, between which ran a small stream.

In due course an excellent set of drawings was presented, one showing the bridge in its completion, with a sketch of the surroundings, and on which sat two men, with their legs hanging over the side, fishing. The drawing was returned with the request that the men be removed from the bridge.

Upon receiving the paper the second time the professor discovered that his instructions had been carried out, but that the two men were seated on the bank of the stream, still in quest of representatives of the finny tribe.

Again was the paper returned, and this time with positive orders to remove the men from the drawing altogether. Imagine the consternation which overspread the features of the learned instructor upon receiving the papers for a third time to find two little graves and tombstones with appropriate epitaphs situated near the bank of the stream. His orders had been obeyed and the men removed altogether.—London Answers.

Sandy and the Mare.

A Scottish paper tells a story of Sandy Mc—, a Forfarshire farmer who had been spending an hour or two in the evening with a friend a couple of miles away. It was a moonlight night, and Sandy, after partaking freely of his friend's hospitality, was riding quietly home across the sheep pastures on his "guid auld mare," when they came to an open ditch, which his mare refused to cross.

"Hoot awa, Maggie," said the rider, "this winna dae. Ye maun jist gang ower."

He turned back about 100 yards, wheeled round and gave the mare a touch of his whip. On she went at a brisk canter, but as they reached the edge of the ditch she stopped dead and shot Sandy clean over to the other side.

Gathering himself up, Sandy looked his mare straight in the face and said: "Vera weel pitched indeed, ma lass. But hoo are ye goin' to get ower yersel', eh?"

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heartburn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College, Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., Author of American Dispensatory; Prof. Jno. M. Scudder, M. D., Author of Specific Medicines; Prof. Laurence Johnson, M. D., Med. Dept. Univ. of N. Y.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., Author of Materia Medica and Prof. in Bennett Medical College, Chicago. Send name and address on Postal Card to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive free booklet giving extracts from writings of all the above medical authors and many others endorsing, in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient of which "Golden Medical Discovery" is composed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They may be used in conjunction with "Golden Medical Discovery" if bowels are much constipated. They're tiny and sugar-coated.

Let the Idea Germinate.

There is a dangerous tendency in communities both large and small to ignore the necessity of being provident and to give the entire thought and attention to matters of the present instead of probabilities of the future. These probabilities threaten and hang over our heads every minute. They are a constant menace, but still we persist in an optimism that the ancients would declare would offend the gods. We have stupendous energy and drive away every suggestion of calamity that arises in our minds and so make no provision against it, schooled though we are in the old proverb "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." As individuals our neglect is shameful. As communities or collectively it is criminal.

The matter of public health and sanitary precaution is one of the most vital consequence of this tendency. Sonoma is not the only city which is endangering her future and hampering her progress. It is a most lamentable circumstance that our people have not associated bonding the city with sewering the city. In proportion to the value, in the voters mind a $50,000 sewer bond should have appealed to their reason if a city hall was worth a $10,000 bond. One cannot refrain from comparing the neglect of the one idea and the cultivation of the other with the individual who shrinks from the bath tub but bedecks himself on the exterior with expensive linen and haberdashery. There is about as much sense in this as in the sequence of city hall and sewer.

We can never have a spotless town or a beautiful town unless we begin right. The eye may be deceived but we have other senses which are keen and the stranger who comes to our threshold and compares us with other communities is keener still.

It is not with prohibition and high license that we have now to have a reckoning for we are menaced by greater evils. The liquor problem will work itself out with the coming of a new population whose public opinion will dictate ultimate legislation in regard to it. Then will be determined whether we are to have a wide open town or Southern California temperance. Have no fears, gentle reader, and deplore neither the one or the other. We are destined for neither so long as we remain in the groove we are in at present.

Let the city hall go on building. It is at least a monument to one modern idea which carried at our polls—that of bonding. Perhaps that idea which germinated to the extent of $10,000 may grow until we can yet carry a proposition to bond the City of Sonoma for a fine modern sewer system.

If a man's chin is worth $53 what is his face value? That is for the Oakland Judge to determine who is trying a suit wherein the plaintiff asks damages for a mistreated chin.

Personal Mention

Chas. LaTorres went to the metropolis Sunday.

Mrs. J. E. Poppe was in Napa one day this week.

Alfred Warriner was a visitor to San Francisco Sunday.

F. J. Kerridge spent several days this week in Santa Rosa.

Miss Mamie Fochetti was up from San Francisco Sunday.

George Engler made a business trip to San Francisco Tuesday.

Julius Poppe Jr. is visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Poppe.

T. H. Thompson of San Francisco was in town one day this week.

Miss Isabel Trudgen returned home from the metropolis Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Mahlsted and little daughter came up from the city Sunday.

Rev. C. C. Cragin left for Campbell, Santa Clara county, last Monday morning.

Mrs. Alma Hodgkinson nee (Cutter) is here the guest of Mrs. Lulu Emparan.

Mrs. Robt. Poppe and daughter Miss Emilie were in Alameda Sunday visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gilbert and little son master Eddie Gilbert were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Gilbert last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shaw are the happy parents of a new baby daughter, which was born on Thursday of last week.

Mr. Robt Hall has so far recovered as to be up and around. He drove into town several days this week and is looking very well.

Friend McHarvey spent a couple of days here this week. Friend is now employed by the Key Route railway company, Oakland. He is married and was lately presented with a baby boy.

Asa H. Waugaman of the California Lithograph Company was in town Saturday. Mr. Waugaman is a son-in-law of Hon. Robt Howe, formerly of this place.

J. E. Poppe started up his distillery Monday, substituting an oil burner for wood. The introduction of oil does away with a stoker and reduces the cost of fuel over one-half.

Architect A. C. Lutgens inspected the new city hall last Saturday. He reports Superintendent Sherer as making very satisfactory progress and the stone work is rapidly nearing completion.

Mrs. Blackburn, wife of Coroner Frank L. Blackburn, had her collar bone broken in an automobile accident near San Rafael, Sunday night. Mr. Blackburn, who was steering the machine, escaped with slight bruises.

Chas. Ayers, one of the striking carmen of San Francisco, came up from the metropolis, one day last week, and is now sojourning on the Ayers ranch. He brought with him his span of farm horses, which until the boycott was declared off on the United Railroads recently, did efficient service in hauling passengers in opposition to the car line.

Cures Old Sores.

Westmoreland, Kans., May 5, 1902. Ballard Snow Liniment Co.: Your Snow Liniment cured an old sore on the side of my chin that was supposed to be a cancer. The sore was stubborn and would not yield to treatment, until I tried Snow Liniment, which did the work in short order. My sister, Mrs. Sophia J. Try Preventics, At My Risk With Book on Colds.

Just to prove merit—to show you how quickly Preventics can and will check colds or the Grippe—I will mail you free on request these samples and my book. Simply address—Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Preventics are thoroughly harmless little Candy Cold Cure tablets. No Quinine, no laxative, nothing sickening whatever. To check early Colds or Grippe with "Preventics" means sure defeat for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is surely safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterward. Preventics will however reach a deeply seated cold. But taken early—at the sneeze stage—they break or head off these early colds. That is surely better—that is why they are named "Preventics." Promptness however is all-important. Promptness in the use of Preventics may save half your usual sickness. Feverishness, night or day, with child or adult, suggests the need of Preventics. BURGLARS ENTER BROADWAY HOME.

Rob Residence of Druggist Simmons, Securing $75 in Coin.

Burglars entered the home of L. S. Simmons on Broadway sometime after midnight Saturday and abstracting $75 from his trousers pocket made good their escape without arousing the sleeping occupants.

The burglary was a daring one. The thieves entered the sleeping apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Simmons in which an electric light is kept burning all night just to shoo off such fellows. But it didn't work in this case. Entering the room in the glare of the light they stealthily approached the bedside of the sleeping couple and securing the trousers made their exit from the room as quietly as they had entered and proceeding down stairs to the dining room leisurely went through the pockets of the garment. Securing the gold they made good their escape.

The burglars were evidently after coin only as jewelry, silverware and other valuables, although within easy reach, were left untouched. They effected an entrance through a side window on the ground floor which was unfastened.

An attempt was also made to rob the residence of Mrs. Wm. Goodman, on the opposite side of the street from the Simmons' home the same night, presumably by the same burglars. They entered the house but were evidently frightened off before securing any booty.

No clew to the daring burglars has yet been discovered. They completely covered up their tracks and are supposed to be old hands at the business.

Still Another Improvement

Theo. Kiser and Paul Robin have bought from P. Loustalet the lot between the City Hotel and Rambo's new building now in course of erection. The lot is 23x150 feet and the new owners will erect on the same a building which will be used for a shaving parlor with bath rooms attached. A bowling alley will also be built and run by these enterprising young men.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuous lining of the Eustachian Tube When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of deafness (caused by Cartarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Sudden Attack of Dysentary Cured.

A prominent lady of Brooklyn, N. Y., writes to inquire where she can obtain Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. She says: "While stopping at a ranch in South Dakota I was taken ill of what seemed to be cholera. They gave me some of this medicine and it cured me. I brought a bottle home and have just used the last of it to-day. Mother was taken suddenly ill of dysentary and it helped her immediately." For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Exciting Runaway.

A two-horse rig in which was seated a Japanese restaurant keeper of Santa Rosa and his wife, created a great commotion on Napa street Tuesday. The bay horses attached to the vehicle became frightened at an automobile near the public school house and ran away. One of the lines broke and the Jap was unable to control the runaways and they tore along the street at a furious gait. The Jap's wife, who was seated beside him, became terrified and her piercing screams could be heard blocks away. When nearly opposite Eastland's pharmacy the runaways collided with another rig and the impact hurled the man and woman from the buggy to the ground without serious injury to either. The horses before they could be seized by those near-by gathered themselves together and ran another block with accelerated speed, and finally were brought to a standstill by running into some big oil tanks in front of Clewe's storehouse on Broadway.

The buggy was but slightly damaged and after borrowing a pole from the Union Stables the couple proceeded on their way to Santa Rosa, whither they were bound when interrupted by the chug machine.

JEFF GAGE KILLS IN SELF-DEFENSE.

Conductor is Shot by Passenger and Returns Fire With Fatal Effect.

Jeff Gage, for a number of years passenger conductor on the Southern Pacific between Vallejo Junction and Santa Rosa, engaged in a pistol duel with an unknown man whom he had ejected from his train near Tracy last Sunday. Gage's run is now up the San Joaquin valley and just after pulling out of Tracy he ejected a passenger for refusing to pay fare. The man, who was somewhat under the influence of liquor, immediately drew a pistol and opened fire on the conductor, slightly wounding him in the groin. Drawing his weapon Conductor Gage returned the fire. At this stage several passengers also took a hand in the game and commenced shooting at the man, who ran a short distance and fell dead with a bullet wound through the body.

The man was struck only once, persumably from a bullet from Gage's pistol, the passengers bullets going wide of the mark.

The shooting was witnessed by scores of passengers, all of whom unite in saying it was a case of killing or being killed on the conductor's part.

New Settlers.

Mr. Albert E. Bennett, who recently proved up on his 160-acre homestead in the mountains near Agua Caliente, was in town Tuesday. Mr. Bennett is making many improvements on his little farm. THE TAX RATE IS HIGH THIS YEAR.

Inside Sonoma City, $2.69; Sonoma Township, $2.29 and Glen Ellen, $2.45.

What with the building of a city hall and public school buildings for Sonoma and Glen Ellen, for which a special tax has been provided, and an increase in the county rate over last year, taxes for 1907-8 come high in the Sonoma Valley—higher in fact than they have been in many years.

At a meeting of the Board of Supervisors last Monday the tax levy for the ensuing fiscal year was fixed at $1.75 on each $100 of valuation. This includes the State rate.

Following is a comparative statement of Sonoma county's tax levy last year and the present levy:

	1906	1907
State Fund	476	445
Indigent	094	12
General	41	565
School	28	27
Road	36	35
Total	$1 57	$1.75

The Supervisors have also levied this year a special school tax in twenty-nine school districts in the county, varying between 10 cents in the Forestville district and 70 cents on the $100 in the Glen Ellen district, which is a top-notcher with two school taxes to pay.

This school tax brings the total tax to be paid in the Glen Ellen district up to $2.45 on the $100 of valuation.

A special school tax of 54 cents was levied in the following districts: Dunbar, Enterprise, Flowery, El Verano, Sonoma, Huichica, San Luis and Watmaugh. This makes the total levy in those districts $2.29.

Inside the incorporated limits of Sonoma taxpayers will have to dig up as follows:

State and county taxes	$ 1.40
Special school tax	54
Municipal tax	75
Total	$2 69

The earthquake of 1906, which destroyed and damaged many public buildings in the county, is responsible in a great measure for an increase in the tax levy while public improvements have also helped to raise the rate.

City Hotel Changes Hands

Mr. W. H. Bruening, the well known caterer who has been engaged in the restaurant business here for several years, assumed charge of the City Hotel last Sunday. He has bought out the hotel proper. The bar will still be presided over Jas. C. O'Rourke.

Mr. Bruening in taking possession of the City Hotel will aim to make it a first-class hostlery in every particular. He will inaugurate many improvements for the convenience of his guests and will endeavor to make it a popular resort for both transient and regular patrons.

The Epidemic Scare.

No new cases of varioloid have developed in the valley the past ten days and the disease is confined to the three cases mentioned last week. A strict quarantine has been enforced over the premises where these cases are confined and a spread of the disease is not now feared by our local Board of Health, although no public gatherings will be permitted and the public schools kept closed until all danger is passed, on the principle that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Miss Matilda Clell Marzo and Joseph L. Enfeld has been announced. The marriage license was obtained from County Clerk Wright last Wednesday. The wedding day has not as yet been announced. Miss Marzo is the handsome daughter of Mr. and Mrs Marzo of the Garibaldi House. Mr. Enfeld is one of our popular young men and has lived here all his life.

Still Another Improvement

That the spirit of improvement has struck Sonoma and come to stay is in evidence in every part of town. The boom inaugurated a couple of years ago is still on and in addition to the many new buildings completed and those in course of construction a number of others are contemplated, work upon which will be commenced at once. Among these is a new store for F. Duhring, which will occupy a site on First-street West, between the old store and the Sonoma House.

Plans for the new building have already been prepared by C. T. Ryland. It will be a one-story brick affair with a frontage of 37 feet and a depth of 77 feet.

Social Functions are Called Off.

Owing to the edict of the local health board forbidding all public gatherings as a precautionary measure against the spread of a threatened epidemic, the bazaar and garden party of the Ladies' Aid Society and the annual reception of the Woman's Club have been indefinitely postponed.

Personal Mention.

Mr. C. Hollenbeck of Belevdere was in town Sunday visiting with friends.

Wanted a Ticket to Sonoma

"Tell me," said a young and lovely woman to the director of elevator traffic in the Flood building, "where are the offices of the Northern Pacific?'

"They are not here," was the reply.

"Well, where are the offices of the Chicago Northwestern?" she snapped, with an impatient tap of her heels.

"On the Market street side, but as it is Saturday afternoon the offices are all closed."

"How inconsiderate of these railroad men," she said, "especially as I want to buy a ticket at once."

"Where are you going, madam?" asked the director submissively.

"Any one with a grain of intelligence," she retorted' "would have known I wanted to buy a ticket for Sonoma from the questions I have asked," and she swept out of the Flood building with muttered remarks about the denseness of men in general, and especially of so-called railroad men.—San Francisco Call.

LONG BOW STORIES.

Legends of the Famous Archers of the Remote Past.

Many "long bow" stories may be cited in the literature of the world, and by far the greater part of them had their origin in the remote past.

Vergil, in the "Æneid," tells of four archers who were shooting for a prize, the mark being a pigeon tied by a cord to the mast of a ship. The first man hit the mast, the second cut the cord, and the third shot the pigeon as it flew away. The fourth archer, having nothing left at which to shoot, drew his bow and sent his arrow flying toward the sky with such speed that the friction of the air set the feathers on fire, and it swept on like a meteor to disappear in the clouds.

That is a bow and arrow story that tests the strongest powers of credulity.

The stories of Robin Hood's archery, illustrated by his wonderful performance as Locksley in Scott's "Ivanhoe," are also a decided strain on one's power of belief.

The famous legend of William Tell is believed by some to have a foundation in fact. There was a Dane named Foke of whom the same story was told, and William of Cloudesley, an Englishman, is said to have shot an apple from his son's head merely to show his skill.

The majority of bow and arrow stories relate to the accurate aim of the archers, but a Frenchman, Blaise de Vigenere, tells one in which the main point is the tremendous force with which an arrow may be propelled if the bow is strong and long enough. According to his own account of the matter, he saw Barbarossa, a Turk, admiral of a ship called the Grand Solyman, send an arrow from his bow clean through a cannon ball. Whether the cannon ball had a hole in it or not he neglects to inform us.

Perhaps the most astounding of all stories about arrow shooting is that of the Indians who used to inhabit Florida. It is said that a group of them would form a circle; one would throw an ear of corn into the air; the rest would shoot at it and shell it of every grain before it fell to the ground. Sometimes the arrows would strike the ear of corn so hard and fast that it would remain suspended in the air several minutes, and the cob never fell until the last grain had been shot away.—Chicago Record-Herald.

HINDOO PROVERBS.

Happiness consists in the absence of anxiety.

Truth, contentment, patience and mercy belong to great minds.

Little things should not be despised. Many straws united will bind an elephant.

It can never be safe to unite with an enemy. Water, though heated, will soon extinguish fire.

He who removes another from danger and he who removes terror from the mind are the greatest of friends.

Courage is tried in war, integrity in the payment of debt and interest, the faithfulness of a wife in poverty and friendship in distress.

Every one looking downward becomes impressed with the idea of his own greatness, but looking upward feels his own littleness.

He who in your presence speaks kindly, but in your absence seeks to injure, must be rejected like a bowl of poison covered with milk.

Obedience of Orders.

A naval commander in the reign of Queen Anne was ordered to cruise with a squadron within certain limits on the coast of Spain. Having received information that a Spanish fleet was in Vigo, beyond his limits, he resolved to risk his personal responsibility for the good of his country. He accordingly attacked and defeated the Spanish fleet with uncommon gallantry. When he joined the admiral under whom he served, he was ordered under arrest and was asked if he did not know that by the articles of war he was liable to be shot for disobedience of orders.

He replied with great composure that he was very sensible that he was, but added, "The man who is afraid to risk his life in any way when the good of his country requires it is unworthy of a command in her majesty's service."

Coughing In Lieu of Oratory.

A singular fashion which prevailed among the preachers of Cromwell's time was that of coughing or hemming in the middle of a sentence in order to attract the attention of the congregation. The necessity of continually attracting the attention of the listeners could not have argued well for the brilliance of the sermons. Some authorities say that the preachers coughed merely as an ornament to speech. At any rate, when the sermons were printed, as many of them were, the coughs and hems were always indicated on the margin of the page.—St. Louis Republic.

Interested In Antiques.

Professor McGoozle (suddenly checking himself)—Pardon me, Miss Genevieve, for talking so long. When I get started on my hobby I never know when to stop. I ought not to have assumed, anyhow, that you are interested in antiques. Miss de Muir—Indeed I am, professor. I could listen to you for hours.—Chicago Tribune.

An Ounce of Prevention is worth a pound of cure. There are many poor sufferers, Consumptives who are hopeless of getting well—who, if they had taken care of themselves, would now be well A cough is the foundation of Consumption. Ballard's H arhound Syrup will cure that cough. Mrs. S., Great Falls, Montana, writes: "I have used Ballard's Hoarhound Syrup in my family for years —my children never suffer with coughs." Sold by Simmons Pharmacy.

"Would you like to attend a lecture on the fine arts?"

"No," answered Mr. Cumrox. "Mother and the girls can make me feel my ignorance sufficiently at home free of charge."—Washington Star.

THE TREE DOCTOR.

His Method of Treating a Trunk That Is Decaying.

When a tree doctor treats a decayed tree he begins by cutting an aperture in the tree large enough to allow him to get at the inside and remove all the decayed wood. This is essential to the success of the operation. When this work has been done the cavity is ready to be filled. The composition used in case of large fillings contains five parts of sand to one part of portland cement, except for the outer part, where these ingredients are used half and half, this outer coating being several inches thick. To hold the cement in place while it is hardening a stout tin or zinc is employed, this being secured to the trunk of limb in a way to preserve the natural shape. The tin is put on in strips, being fastened with round steel nails having a broad head and a small shank. The strips are wide enough to lap over upon the sound wood, and the nails are placed from half an inch to an inch apart, acording to the strain imposed.

The first strip of tin is put on at the lower part of the aperture and the cement put in until it reaches nearly to the top of the tin. Then a second strip is put on, lapping over the other two or three inches, and the two nailed together. Then more cement is used, and so on until the cavity is filled, the last strip of tin being bent down while the final application of cement is being puddled into place and the cavity entirely filled, and then it is straightened up and nailed in place. In case of extra large cavities large sheets of tin or sheet iron are nailed on the outside to prevent the tin from bulging out until the cement has hardened, when they can be removed. The smaller the cavity the larger are the strips of tin employed, as the strain is proportionately less. In twenty-four hours' time the cement will have hardened completely, and the tin may all be removed.

This remedy is applied successfully to fruit trees as well as shade trees.—New York Tribune.

A LESSON IN NERVE.

The Laundry Didn't Charge For the Ruined Shirt.

"When I came to open my bundle of stuff sent home from the laundry this morning," said the bachelor man, "I found in it, sent back washed, but not ironed, one shirt that had pinned to it a ticket reading like this:

"'We are returning this shirt on account of it not being in a condition to withstand ironing.'

"This was a new one to me, but when I came to open up the shirt and looked it over I didn't wonder that they hadn't tried to iron it; one arm was all but torn from its socket, and there was a hole punched through one cuff, with a tear extending from this hole for an inch or two up the sleeve. The shirt was sure not in condition for ironing, but how did it get so?

"I certainly never sent it to the laundry in that shape. I'd have had hard work tearing the sleeve out of the shoulder the way this one was torn, and I couldn't have made that hole in the cuff without some sort of a sharp and big punch. Clearly the shirt had been torn and mangled in that manner by being caught in the laundry machinery, and so I wrapped it up in a neat little bundle and took it over to the laundry office, intending to make a claim for the value of it. I spread the shirt out on the counter and called the clerk's attention to it and told him that I couldn't have torn the shirt in that manner; it must have been done in the laundry, and how about it?

"'Well,' said the clerk, 'we made no charge for it.'

"As the full significance of this came upon me—they had torn my shirt all to pieces, but they didn't make any charge for it!—I staggered back, and I kept on staggering that way until I had got out of the door.

"I shall never make any further claim for the shirt. I got back far more than its value in that lesson in clear, cold nerve."—New York Sun.

An Old Song.

From the hieroglyphics on an Egyptian tomb comes the following song, almost identical with one sung by the Egyptian peasants considerably over 3,000 years later than this was written:

Tread ye out for yourselves,
Tread ye out for yourselves,
O oxen!
Tread ye out for yourselves,
Tread ye out for yourselves,
The straw!
For men who are your masters,
The grain!

—London Chronicle.

Downtroddon Husbands.

The middle class woman in England now generally affects to be superior to the social position she occupies; she endeavors to dress, live and act up to the highest standard she has adopted as her own. This attitude and its attendant circumstances eventually induce the ordinary middle class husband to regard her as socially superior to himself. In time, from this cause, he becomes little better than a footman to his own wife.—Marmaduke in London Truth.

Forgot Himself.

Her Husband (during the spat)—Don't you think for a minute that you can impose on me. There are no fools in our family. His Wife—Why, John, you forget yourself!—Chicago News.

Romance of Failure.

Failure is nearly always more romantic than success. As a rule, when once a man is comfortably successful he ceases to be interesting.—London Reader.

We are best of all led to men's principles by what they do.—Butler.

Children in Pain

never cry as do children who are suffering from hunger. Such is the cause of all baby's who cry and are treated for sickness, when they really are suffering from hunger. This is caused from their food not being assimila ed but devoured by worms. A few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge will cause them to cease crying and begin to thrive at once. Give it a trial.
